FGM-AMOR, Gemeinnützige GmbH

Austrian Mobility Research (www.fgm.at) is a private non-profit research, consulting and educational organisation based in Graz, Austria. Austrian Mobility Research has more than 15 years experience in national and European research focused on sustainable transport. Austrian Mobility Research is a multidisciplinary company with about 45 employees, one third amongst those are academics, well trained in mobility management, dissemination and evaluation. The company's main departments are "Mobility Management" focusing on a multimodal and environmentally friendly approach to mobility needs, and "Mobility Telematics" focusing on telematics solutions in public transport.

Austrian Mobility Research has extensive experience in project management and in co-ordinating even big consortiums (up to over 60 Partners) on a national and international level. This experience is reflected in over 100 EU projects which Austrian Mobility Research has participated as partner as well as coordinator.

As result of realising this number of EU projects Austrian Mobility Research can build on a Europe-wide network of partners and good contacts to institutions, organisations and companies which are working in various disciplines. Within the last years Austrian Mobility Research laid a special focus on working together with partners in Eastern European Countries and New Member States. On a national level Austrian Mobility Research works successfully in co-operation with disability organisations, but also in the field of road safety and school mobility. The in-house design department guarantees to meet the ambitious criteria of marketing & promotion. It is specialised in dissemination of know-how gained in European projects for which it has created unique, appealing dissemination products in high quality. Products include print material (newsletters, posters and brochures), electronic information (websites, newsletters), CD ROMs, videos and even games.

Furthermore, Austrian Mobility Research acts as a consultant for national, regional and local authorities as well as for transport operators in several national and international projects.
